In commemoration of His Excellency the Viceroy's visit to the Calcutta Madrassa on the occasion of the last annual distribution of prizes, a number of gentlemen and the Mahomedan Literary Society have offered to invest various sums in Government Securities for the foundation of scholarships and prizes for the benefit of Mahomedan students. One gentleman gives Rs. 6,000, two others Rs. 3,000 each, another and the Mahomedan Literary Society each Rs. 1,000, four gentlemen Rs. 500 each, and three Rs. 300 each. His Excellency the Viceroy has been pleased to accord permission to the use of his name in connection with the scholarships and prizes, and the Lieutenant-Governor has accepted the offers with much pleasure, and tendered his cordial thanks to the donors. Further, the Nawab Shumsool-Oomra Kurshid Jah Bahadur of Hyderabad has presented Rs. 15,000, and the Maharajah of Durbhunga has given Rs. 12,000 for the foundation of scholarships to be held by students of the Calcutta Madrassa; and the National Mahomedan Association has established four scholarships, two of Rs. 15 each per mensem, one being tenable by a Mahomedan student at the Medical College for five years, and the other at the Shibpore Engineering College for three years; and two of Rs. 10 each per mensem, tenable for four years at any of the Arts Colleges in Bengal.

The Maharaja of Burdwan protests that he has lost Rs. 80,000 within the last ten years in carrying out the laws defining the obligations of zemindars to furnish with provisions troops passing through their estates: and this declaration, along with a memorial from some Hoogly landowners, has been brought under the immediate review of Government the whole question of the duties incumbent upon parties concerned. The chief complaints urged are that the zemindars have to supply articles not locally forthcoming, and that when procured the soldiery will not pay the price at which they are ...cles over; that they have to supply beef, a necessary ... object to on religious ...ounds; that the soldiers are ... guilty of ill-treatment of servants; that their putaidars who locally occupy the estates are the persons liable, not the owner-in-chief who may live several miles away; and finally, there is a general contention that the state of the country is so far changed that the regulations dealing with procedure in the matter do not, under altered circumstances, altogether apply, and that the Commissariat should now perform the work which a country, unsettled and with poor means of communication, from its nature formerly imposed upon the zemindars. The Pioneer thinks there is a good deal of nonsense in the compaint, as on the point of supplying beef, for which frequent contracts are taken up by zemindars, but remarks that "in these days of railway communication, local supplies, such as those of straw, gram, bhoosa, firewood, and eggs, ought alone to be indented for, except in time of emergency. But with a little tact on the part of the Collector's representative, a little firmness on the part of the officer in command, a little provision on the side of the Commissariat, and a tolerance of occasional loss on that of the zemindars, there need be no tampering with present Regulations."

Commenting on an opinion expressed by the New York Herald that "it is none of England's business what is done with the surplus of the money awarded by the Geneva Congress," the Bombay Guardian remarks: "In our opinion it would be disgraceful for the United States to keep money given for a specific purpose, but which cannot be so applied. The amount awarded was larger than the amount of veritable claims, and the surplus should certainly be placed at the disposal of Great Britain."

The Court-Martial which tried Commander H. J. Mullan for the loss of the U. S. man-of-war Ashuelot in the China seas has found that officer guilty of losing his vessel, and sentenced him to be dismissed from the United States Navy. The Navigating Officer, Lieutenant Wyckoff, who was also put upon his trial, was found not guilty and honourably acquitted.

Truth agrees that "there is a good deal of truth in the ridicule that a lady poured out over men's dress in a letter to the Times. Their evening dress is a very absurd arrangement. A tunic and knickerbockers would be far more practical and more comfortable. But, even without going so far in change as this, might it not be possible to do away with the vast expanse of starched shirt-fronts? It is neither graceful, nor does it serve any purpose. In the days of Queen Anne it was the fashion amongst those who were then called beaux, to wear the waistcoat open, in order to show as much shirt as possible. A lady, writing in the Tatler, says: 'There is a fat fellow, whom I have long remarked, wearing his breast open, in hopes ... midst ... ...ssion of youth. ... was supposed to have a very killing effect on the fair sex, for the same lady observes: 'A sincere heart has not made half so many conquests as an open waistcoat.' Shirts then were dearer then they are now, for Swift tells Stella: "I have paid Harrison while he was ... ... seven guineas, in full of a dozen of shirts he ... from Holland." Neckcloths were even dearer proportionately than shirts, for in the Daily Courrant, Nov. 4, ... advertisement informs the world that "very fine muslin neckcloths are to be sold at 5s. apiece."

MILITARY NEWS.

Colonel Roome, Commandant 5th Regiment Bombay N. I., has obtained an extension of leave for six months, and his regiment becomes vacant on the 15th instant, when Colonel Roome will have completed his seven years' tenure of command. The steps will no doubt go in the regiment, Colonel Hunt, second-in-command, succeeding to the command, Major Cobbe becoming second-in-command and Major Hennell getting the wing. Colonel Roome succeeds to the off-reckonings next year, and Colonel Hunt, who is what is called a "lucky local," will get his off-reckenings in 1886. So regimental promotion in the 5th will be pretty rapid.

We hear from Quetta that a Ghazi ran amuck there a short time ago, and that he unfortunately killed a British soldier. Being caught red-handed, he was tried, hanged, and his body burned within a very short time. The compulsory cremation of murderous fanatics ought to exercise a deterrent effect on others of a like mind.

TOMMY ATKINS' IMPRESSIONS OF SERVICE IN INDIA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

Sir,—Tommy Atkins' impressions of India previous to his volunteering, or being sent out from the United Kingdom in the ordinary course of his military career, are based invariably on the glowing accounts told him by the elder "T. A." arriving home from this country. Out of pure deviltry and the love of spinning a yarn to eager hearers, old Tommy relates what a beautiful country it is that he has come from, what a different kind of soldiering it is, plenty of sport, his adventures by day and night in the jungles in search of game, &c., &c. And last, but not least, he tells how comfortably he was situated in every respect. But on the young Tommy's mind, after his first few months in India, there dawns a serious doubt that the elder "T. A." must have been either an awfully great crammer, or else a big fool, in not having discovered during the time he was out there that he was far worse off in every respect than he would be at home. The younger Tommy readily perceives this. These are his calculations with regard to pay in India and at home.

	Rs. a. p.
His pay in India as a private at annas 8-6 per day for twelve months	193 14 0
Outlay for twelve months as per:—
For cooking pice per day rations for the twelve months	6 7 0
" little extras in the cook-room for the twelve months	13 0 0
" washing for the twelve months...	7 8 0
	93 15 0

This leaves him to pay for khaki, library, canteen of all sorts, to spend, and save, the sum of 99 15 0

Which sum converted at the rate of 1s. 3d. per rupee is equal to ..... £8 6s. 3d.

	£ s. d.
His pay at home at 1s. per day for twelve months amounts to	18 5 0
Out of which during that period he pays for [illegible] and shaving 3d. per day	5 6 3
This leaves him with but a few pence to pay for out of the sum of	12 18 9

This Tommy can buy off by £4-11-10½ by soldiering at home. Also the articles he may require to purchase are so very much cheaper; even the papers (and postage) to his library have for the past twelve months been 2½d., for which he is a great drawback to a good supply of English papers, periodicals, &c. I think my remarks are true. Tommy's desire now is to quit the khaki army and refute the statements of his elder brother; and although £10 are offered to him to remain, he does not intend to wait for M. de Lesseps' new Canal, but back through the old one he will rush with all that is left of them.

TRUMPETER GOULDSWORTHY AT THE BATTLE OF POLICHOW.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

Sir,—Would you kindly insert the following in your very valuable paper, in the hope that it may meet the eyes of the proper officials to do me justice for the services I rendered to my Queen and country, and also to the officer whose life I saved in the battle, and the manner in wh... saved to ... out of the middle ... my single handed ... and the whole army at large, to decide if I am not deserving of the decoration of the V.C. Twenty-two years are past since the day this battle was fought; but I am putting this forward with the old motto, "better late than never;" and when the public have read my services for one battle, they will be able to place me with some of the men who have done brave deeds in the battlefields. These are the services of Trumpeter John Gouldsworthy, of the 1st King's Dragoon Guards, who was present at the Battle of Palichow in China, on the 21st of September, 1860. On this morning I was trumpeter to General Sir John Mitchell, when the regiment, the 1st King's Dragoon Guards, was about to charge the enemy. I was ordered by the General to join my troops; as soon as I did so my regiment was ordered to charge and disperse the enemy. We advanced first at a walk; then the trot was sounded, and then the ..., and then the charge was sounded. It was very hard ... for cavalry to charge, as we had to get over a very awkward ditch, which the regiment got over in a very creditable manner. And when they got over they had to attack the enemy, who were in great numbers. They killed eight men, when I suddenly came to the assistance of Lieutenant W. S. Marshead of the Madras Cavalry, attached to the 1st King's Dragoon Guards for duty, who was engaged with six Chinese Tartars, out of which he was ... going to cut his head with his sword, when like a flash of lightning I pierced my sword through his neck, and he fell dead. I killed three more of them in a short time, and the ... the other two went on in their ... Lieutenant Marshland, now retired Colonel of the 5th Dragoon Guards. When I had polished off three large Mandarins in a short time, I turned round and said to him, "That's the way to polish them off, Sir," he said, "Well done, go on." I went on until I came at last to a full stop, and when the smoke and dust cleared away I found myself ingulfed in the centre of the Chinese army. I said to myself, now or never, I will make one ... from the regiment at the time. I put spurs to my horse and made a dash through the whole of the Tartar army. I had my trumpet shot off my back. In the return I cut down and rode down all that came in my way. When I met with my regiment they were all formed up; and when I came, as my horse and myself were covered with blood, also my sword—no less than over forty men fell to my sword that day—Colonel J. R.S. Sayers called me and said:—"Trumpeter Gouldsworthy, are you or your horse wounded?" I said, "Colonel, I don't know; I don't feel as I am, and I don't know if my horse is or not." So he said to me, "John your trooper," which I did. My trumpet was found by one of Probyn's Horse, and I received it back again the next day. After we came into the encamping ground that night, the officers were talking over the day's adventures, when Lieut. MacLeod told them that I had saved his life, and then Lieut. Marshland said:—"Yes, that little trumpeter of my troop was polishing them off in rare style. I don't know how many I saw him despatch; and he turned round to me, laughing, and said, 'Sir, that is the way to polish them off.'" The next day, when I looked to my saddle, four bullets rolled out of my cloak. I heard not... about my distinguished conduct in the field, or reward for my services. In 1861 my regiment came ... Colonel ... Camp to the Major-General Commanding the Burma Division, in the place of Captain W. A. Yule, appointed Assistant Quartermaster-General. ... 1862, Lieut. MacLeod's brother came out to join his brother in the same regiment, the 1st Madras Cavalry; so I was summoned to his quarters to receive a gold watch and chain that he had instructed his brother to bring out for me. I went, and I was presented with a gold watch and chain. The following inscription is on the watch:—"Presented by Lieut. W. S. MacLeod, of the Madras Cavalry, to Trumpeter Gouldsworthy, of the 1st King's Dragoon Guards, in remembrance of the valuable ... help received from him at the Battle of Palichow, in China, 21st September, 1860. I was recommended for the V. C., and heard nothing about it until 1868, when a letter came addressed to the Officer Commanding 3rd King's Own Hussars, when being the Sadler Sergeant of that regiment, to the effect that there were no more decorations to be awarded for the China expedition. But I have since seen in the papers a account of a man ... ting a medal for a battle fought over twenty years ago, so I thought I might be able to get the same bestowed on me. I see so many decorations have been given in the late wars in Afghanistan, Africa, and Egypt, that I bring my past services forward; so I lay my case before the public, and I believe I was the only European soldier recommended for the V. C. What I have stated may appear of an exaggerated, but it is all true, and will be verified by Colonel J. R. S. Sayers, Colonel Slade, Colonel Marshland, Colonel Alexander, Colonel Gunter, Captain Wingfield, Lieutenant Groves, and all the officers that served in the 1st King's Dragoon Guards through the expedition, and also by Lieutenant MacLeod, now Major MacLeod, of the Madras Staff Corps. I saw Colonel Marshland ... ... when he landed in Bombay, sailing from Africa, and he asked me if I had received the V. C. I told him I had not. He said it was a great shame, and if I wrote at any time he would do all he could for me to get it. If the authorities write to say all these ... that I have mentioned, I am sure they will ... ate all I have written.

Bayley, the Hon'ble Mr. Barkley, and the mover, with instructions to report in seven weeks. The hon'ble mover said:—My lord, this Bill was based on the English law, and the Commissioners, perhaps, aware that a Bill to consolidate that law is now before Parliament; and I observe that a clause of that Bill, which purports to reproduce that statute, contains a proviso which appears to me to be new, and requires the exhibitor (in order that he may get the benefit of it) to give previous notice of his intention to exhibit. I thought it necessary to mention this, as it may be desirable to introduce a similar condition into the Indian Exhibition.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned for a fortnight.

THE DANGER OF LEVEL-CROSSINGS.

The sad accident which ... with such startling abruptness, Dr. Cody from ... midst, has, of course, been much in our thoughts during the last day or two. I suppose the lesson will be forgotten, as that brought home to us by the equally sudden fate which overtook Captain Henry had been. The first impulse undoubtedly was to lay the whole blame upon those in charge of the steamroller which startled Dr. Cody's horses. But as the facts have slowly come out, it is clear that the rough-and-ready process of selecting somebody to hang is as unjust here as it is generally found to be. The steam-rollers may at any moment prove a danger and a nuisance; but in this particular case the men in charge of the roller had duly noted Dr. Cody's approach, and had stopped their engine before the carriage had come within a hundred yards of them. Had Dr. Cody not been driving fresh and spirited horses along a road that runs for miles alongside a railway line, which it crosses, by a sharp turn, through a level-crossing, a valuable life would have been spared to Bombay. Dr. Cody had his horses under control, and all would have been well, had he had a straight road before him. As it was, before he could reduce the speed at which his horses were going, he had to turn almost at right-angles first to the left, and then again to the right, and he met his death because his carriage upset, as any carriage under such conditions is bound to do. The way in which the railway companies in this city have been allowed to multiply traps of this kind, reflects the deepest discredit on those who could and should have prevented it; and ought to strengthen the desire of the city to get the management of their affairs into their own hands. At the present moment, the Bombay Government and the Government of India have decided that the G. I. P. cannot be allowed to continue to cross a great thoroughfare by means of a level-crossing because, forsooth, it is "impossible to provide approaches" for a bridge. I undertake to say that there is not an engineer in the place who does not know that building a suitable bridge over the Nesbit-lane crossing is a mere question of money; and one is curious to see how long matters of this purely civic nature are to be decided from Simla and Ganeshkhind. If either Government had to traverse Nesbit-lane from its bungalow to its office for the space of one short week, we should hear no more of the difficulty of providing approaches. Dr. Blanc made himself the mouthpiece of a widespread feeling of regret in the few graceful words in which he seconded the motion for adjourning the meeting of the Bombay Corporation that fell to be held on the day of Dr. Cody's death. I never heard anyone say an unkind word of Dr. Cody, and I am sure that Dr. Blanc was well within the facts when he declared that his friend had not a foe outside behind him in Bombay.—Bombay Correspondent of the Pioneer.

INDIAN EMIGRATION TO BRITISH COLONIES.

Mr. H. G. Kirke, Emigration Agent for British Guiana and Natal, writes to the Allahabad paper:—So much ignorance is displayed by numerous Assistant Magistrates and Deputy Commissioners in the Mofussil on the subject of emigration from India to the British Colonies, that perhaps you will permit me to say a few words on the subject. The Emigration Agents for the British Colonies in Calcutta and Madras are gentlemen in the Colonial Civil Service, who have been appointed by the Secretary of State for the Colonies. They are paid fixed salaries, and have no more pecuniary interest in the emigrants embarked than a Collector in the Indian Service has in the amount of revenue he transmits to the treasury. No emigrant can embark, nor can any ship sail from India, without having undergone a thorough investigation by most efficient officers appointed for that purpose by the Indian Government. No person who is unwilling or unfit to emigrate is allowed to embark. The provisions of the Emigration Act, 1871, are most stringently enforced, and every possible care is taken for the comfort and safety of the emigrants. In the Colonies themselves the protectors of immigrants, the medical officers, are in Government employ, and are appointed by the Secretary of State. The protection and preservation of Indian immigrants from important items in the duties of the several governments, and laws to enforce their observance occupy a large portion of the Statute Law of the Colonies that receive Indian immigrants. Nor are these laws a dead letter, for any ill-usage or breach of contract on the part of a planter towards an immigrant is visited with the severest penalties. That emigrants are benefited by the change to the British Colonies there can be no doubt. Those that have returned from Demerara alone (and all who wish it can have a free passage home after ten years' residence in the colony), have during the last twenty-five years brought back with them no less a sum than Rs. 36,51,913. The amounts brought back from the other colonies are proportionately great; nay, in the case of Trinidad even larger; and this is exclusive of the large sums of money sent every year by the emigrants in the colonies to their poorer relations in India.

THE MUNICIPAL CORPORATION.

An adjourned special general meeting of the Municipal Corporation was held at the Municipal Offices, on Friday afternoon, the following members being present:—Mr. Raghunath Narayen Khote (in the chair); Surgeon-Major H. J. Blanc, Drs. T. Blaney and P. C. De Souza; Messrs. J. R. Duxbury, E. R. Freeborn, G. Geary, D. Gostling, and J. Macfarlane; Lieut.-Colonel G. L. C. Merewether; Capt. H. Morland; Messrs. M. THE LIVE-STOCK RETURNS.

On the motion of Dr. Blanc, it was decided, in accordance with a recommendation of the Town Council, to write off, as loss, Rs. 1,370-5-0 from the live-stock return of the Health Department, being the book value of 91 bullocks dead, sold, or destroyed, during the quarter ending 28th February last.

VACCINATION AND SMALL-POX AND SEWERAGE WORKS IN GAMMATTEPOORA.

The Corporation then took into consideration the Health Officer's report for the fourth quarter of 1882.

Dr. Blanc drew attention to the vaccination returns in the report, and reminded the meeting that 1,300 deaths from small-pox had occurred during the nineteen weeks that the recent epidemic prevailed. He confessed such a heavy mortality as that indicated one of two things, either that it was not a well-protected city they were living in, or that vaccination was not the great prophylactic which it appeared to be in European countries, where its virtues had been so well established. Looking over the returns for the last four-and-a-half years, he found that the total number of vaccinations under one year was 33,291. To know whether the whole infant population of the city was really vaccinated, and if vaccinated, whether successfully or not, or whether vaccinated at all, they ought first to know the number of births during the same period of four-and-a-half years. He believed the birth registrations in Bombay were not properly made. As a matter of fact, they registered very little more than one-half of the actual births. Consequently he had not the opportunity of comparing the actual number of births with the actual number of vaccinations under one year. But the next best way of arriving at an approximate—he did not say actual—estimate of the number vaccinated and the number born was to assume, as he did assume, that the births in this city equalled the deaths. If it were not so, their population, apart from that which they owed to ... getting from outside, would be diminished. The ... knew that they had an increasing population of ... 12,000 a year, and there was reason to suppose ... a greater part of that ingressed population was ... to an excess of births within the city over ... Thus on the basis that the births were equal ... number of deaths, they found that in the four-... ...alf years he referred to there had been ... deaths, while the vaccinations under one year ... as he had just said, were 33,291, the differ... being 48,563. But they must not suppose ... desired to convey the idea to their m... ... 48,563 infants who ought to have ... vaccin... had not been vaccinated; ... of the h... The compulsory vaccination ... they knew ... parents a period of six ... before they were ... compelled to bring up their ... for vaccination. ... knew also that in the first ... months of infantile ... the mortality was ... sarily very large, larger ... ably than in any ... six months of human life. ... supposing that ... the deaths occurring under one ... were vaccinated ... from this 48,000, the number ... deaths under one year in the four-and-a-half ... mounted to 27,051. Then, if they supposed the ... these 27,051 deaths had occurred because the ... could not come under the hands of the vaccinator, there was a surplus of 21,870 infants under one year still unaccounted for. It was not fair to the vaccination department to infer that they were in any way lax in the performance of their duties. He did not think they were, and he believed they did their best to get hold of the infantile population and to put the Act in operation. In the first place, the department was not supplied with the necessary data of information as to the births, which he admitted was a defect that when Mr. Dosabhoy Framjee first brought before the notice of the Town Council the necessity of a compulsory birth registration Act he (the speaker) forgot part of his duty, namely, that of providing a compulsory birth registration under a penalty. Compulsory vaccination could be of little use unless they had a correct registration of births. To know the whole number of births in Bombay, and to know where the children were born, was to arm the vaccination department with power to enable it successfully to vaccinate the infantile population. If the estimate that the births in the city were equal to the deaths was a reasonable estimate, then there was evidence sufficient to show that there was some increment of the infant population which was not protected by vaccination. If that were true, and if, as was stated in that Corporation some time ago, the vaccinations in the mofussil were not so well done as they were in Bombay, then they were able to understand that with a ... population unprotected, there ... to have a population exposed to small-pox as largely as it appeared to have fallen on the population during the nineteen weeks he referred to. Then the ... to ... outcome of what he had to say was this, that if they were to have a successful working vaccination Act they ought to have a compulsory birth registration Act working beside it. He suggested that large columns should be added to the mortuary returns in cases of all deaths as follows:—1, where vaccinated; 2, when ... cinated; and

Colonel Merewether's proposition was then put and carried.

THE POLICE COMMISSIONER'S PERSONAL ALLOWANCE.

A memorandum from the Municipal Commissioner forwarding copy of Government letter dated 24th May, together with copy of another letter dated 21st March last, on the subject of the proposed increase of Rs. 250 per mensem to Sir Frank Souter's pay, was submitted.

Mr. Dosabhoy Framjee said that it must be in the recollection of the Corporation that on the 27th of January last, while moving the Police Budget estimates, he had proposed an increase of Rs. 200 per mensem to the personal allowance hitherto enjoyed by the Commissioner of Police. He had then fully explained his reasons for the proposed increase, and his proposal was cordially accepted by the Corporation, there being only two dissentients. On a reference from Government, the subject again came up before the Corporation at one of the post meetings. The Government desired to know whether in view of the police expenditure being about to be taken over by them, the Corporation were prepared to accept the liability of the future increase. The consideration of that letter was then postponed. A further letter had since been received, and which was now before them. There had been some misunderstanding on the subject. When the Police Budget was passed by the Town Council, a clause was added to the Police Estimates that the same was subject to such changes as might be made under the local self-government scheme. The clause had no special reference to the proposed increase to Sir Frank Souter's personal allowance. Moreover, no such clause was added to the resolution passed by the Corporation in respect of the Police Estimates. He believed there was no desire on the part of the Corporation to recede from their resolution of the 27th of January last, and he now begged to move "that the Municipal Commissioner be requested to inform the Government, in reply to their letter, that as proposed in the resolution of the Corporation passed on the 27th January last, the Corporation are fully prepared to accept the liability for the increased charge during Sir Frank Souter's tenure of the Police Commissionership, upon the same footing as that for the personal allowance granted in 1878, it being understood, with reference to the transfer of police expenditure from the Municipality to Government, and any adjustment of account which may be incidental thereto, that due regard will be paid to the temporary nature of these allowance charges, as distinguished from the cost of regular establishment and other items of permanent expenditure, which are included in the annual Police Estimates."

Mr. Mirza Hoosein Khan seconded the proposition.

Dr. Blaney said he had objected to the allowance on the last occasion, on the ground of its illegality, and he would be very glad if he could see now that they could ensure the future Corporation passing this item unchallenged. The moment they severed their connection with the police, he thought there would be a legal objection to the allowance.

Mr. Nowrojee agreed with a great deal that had fallen from Dr. Blaney.

Mr. Savani said he did not think there was anything illegal in passing the resolution. On the contrary, it would be highly consistent with the resolution they had already passed. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Gocoldas said that he strongly supported Mr. Dosabhoy's proposition, after what had fallen from the last speaker.

The proposition was then carried by 18 votes to 2.

The Corporation then adjourned.

BENGAL.

A NATIVE LADY MEDICAL STUDENT.—Miss Kadumbinee Bose, who has obtained a Bachelor of Arts degree, and was lately married, has been, we learn, admitted a student in the Calcutta Medical College. Mrs. Gangooly is one of the few native ladies who have entered to qualify as female doctors in Bengal.—Statesman.

A DIVORCE CASE.—In this case, Isabella Sharpe sued for a divorce from her husband, Edwin Sharpe, Chief Engineer of the steam-tug Cyclone, on the grounds of cruelty and adultery. The case was heard yesterday by Mr. Justice Pigott, and the rule granted in the case was made absolute. Rs. 42 a month was grantedas alimony to Mrs. Sharpe.—Indian Daily News.

THE WRECK OF THE COCHIN.—Progress has been made in blowing up the wreck of the Cochin, which now partly blocks the channel off Nurpur Point. We understand that three mines, each consisting of 500 lbs. of gun-cotton, have been successfully exploded in the wreck, and nearly the whole of the stem, which lay across the channels, has been blown up, and a portion of her starboard bow. A large excavation has also been made in the bottom of the channel into which, it is hoped, the remaining portion of the wreck will sink. The wreck is also sinking gradually. Great difficulty has been experienced in the diving operation connected with blowing up the wreck, and also in placing the mines in it, loaded as it is with a heavy cargo of grain.—Englishman.

JURYMEN'S MORAL CONVICTIONS.—The result of the inquest before Mr. Gupta, Coroner of Calcutta, in connection with the death of Mr. Norman E. Watson, an employé of the E. I. Railway Company, who was stated to have been assaulted by another employé of the Company shortly before his death, the jury, after a deliberation of half an hour, brought in a verdict to the effect that the deceased died of natural causes, but that the majority of the jury were morally convinced that the assault aggravated the serious symptoms of illness. The Coroner said that the latter part of the finding of the jury was inconsistent with the legal bearings of the case, and considered its omission necessary on the record. For the matter of that it might be that the assault aggravated the symptoms of illness, but that was a matter outside the province of the jury, who should take their moral convictions to their respective homes. The finding was then amended into that of death from natural causes, which was put upon the record.—Ibid.

MADRAS.

THE LATE MR. R. G. WARD.—We regret to record the death, at his residence, on the Pantheon-road, Egmore, of Mr. Robert Gordon Ward, for many years well known as a legal practitioner in the local Court of Small Causes, as well as in the Presidency Magistrates' Courts. Mr. Ward had had considerable experience in magisterial matters and also in criminal investigations, having been, for a considerable time, Tahsildar of Cuddapah. Up to within two years ago Mr. Ward enjoyed much practice in the courts mentioned above; but failing health compelled him to discontinue active work.—Madras Times.

THE ADAM MEMORIAL.—This large [illegible] each other, was ready for despatch some time ago from the School of Arts, where it was executed, but upon further consideration it was detained by Government till they could avail themselves of the services of a professional man to superintend the conveyance of the memorial to its destination, Ootacamund, as they considered such a step absolutely necessary, since some of the pieces weighed 3 or 4 tons each. Accordingly, Sergeant Smith, supervisor of the P. W. Department, who has just been transferred to Madras, has been deputed to superintend the work.—Madras Mail.

N.-W. PROVINCES, PUNJAB, AND OUDH.

FIRE AT SRINAGUR.—A serious fire occurred a few days ago in Srinagur. It originated in the house of Pundri Nath, Governor of Kashmir, and spread through an entire mohulla, causing great destruction of property.—Civil and Military Gazette.

IRON AND COAL IN THE PUNJAB.—A note on the iron and coal industry of the Punjab has been submitted by Mr. E. E. Oliver, Assistant Secretary, Public Works Department, Punjab. The Lieutenant-Governor has recorded his opinion that Mr. Oliver is entitled to much credit for his valuable paper, and will be glad to hear the result of the further inquiries as to the supply of coal from the Salt Range.—Ibid.

ACCIDENT ON THE S. P. & D. RAILWAY.—An eye-witness sends us the following account of a collision which took place on the night of Thursday last, at the Okara station, on the Lahore and Multan line:—A goods train from Multan left Montgomery in the course of the evening. It was under the charge of a European driver, who had been directed to run cautiously to Okara, as an engine was a short distance ahead. On nearing this station the signals, being against it, the train was stopped for a short time and then allowed to enter Okara. While slowly moving into the station-yard, within the station signals, a fuel train, driven by a native, came up behind at, it is supposed, about thirty miles an hour, and rushed into the goods train, completely wrecking nineteen carriages. One empty third-class carriage on the goods train was hurled on the top of a wagon. The native driver did not turn on the whistle until he was almost upon the goods train. The guard on the goods train, after hearing the signal, had only time to throw himself to the ground from his van. He escaped with a severe shaking. The native driver and stoker were both luckily able to escape in the same manner. The railway authorities are making searching investigations into the matter. This accident is the first of a serious character that has occurred on the line, for an exceptionally long period.—Civil and Military Gazette.
